A is the total amount of net wins received on all games conducted within the casino premises of the casino operator; and
Casino tax is computed monthly based on the Gross Gaming Revenue (GGR) from the games conducted in the casino.

Net win is the amount determined by the total value of money or money's worth received by the casino operator for conducting the game.

Examples of games under this category are table games and gaming machines where the players play against the casino operator.

Net win is the difference between the amount of bets received by the casino operator on the game and the amount paid out by the casino operator as winnings on the game.

Premium Players (A premium player is a person who opens a deposit account with the

GGR at Tier 1 casino tax rates apply to a casino operator for any period during the moratorium period (that is, starting 1 March 2022) if the casino operator satisfactorily meets the targets relevant to the development of facilities and services of the casino operator's integrated resort ("Development Targets")

If a casino operator fails to meet its Development Targets, the Tier 2 casino tax rates of 12% and 22% will apply to the GGR derived from premium players and other players respectively for the period during which the casino operator has failed to meet its obligations.

The impact of home-field advantage depends on the team playing with it - some teams do not have as favorable a crowd or atmosphere as others.
5-point spreads and 10.

These exist in the NFL as well.

I prefer betting on the spread in MLB than NHL or soccer because baseball teams usually win by more than one run.
